

Published based on A Different Kind Of Vacation - See The World From The Top Of A Bike

A Different Kind Of Vacation - See The World From The Top Of A Bike

Biking is a fun way to explore a city. It allows you to gain a much more intimate look at what makes the city tick, and its great exercise. By taking a ride off the traditional beaten tourist path, you are able to see what a city is really about. The following places all require a passport, but online service makes getting them easy. Everything from renewing passports to getting more U S passport pages requires only a few clicks.

Barcelona, Spain is known for so many aspects of a wonderful vacation. Good food, wine, scenery and beauty are everywhere but it is also a very bike-friendly city. Biking is actually a form of public transportation. That's right; you purchase a special card which allows you to go to any of over 100 bike stations around the city of Barcelona and check out a bike. You don't have to drop it off at the original station. Wherever you are going, just leave the bike at the nearest bike station. To encourage this form of green transportation, over 3,250 bike parking spaces are made available by the municipal government. Barcelona hosts Bike Week which is dedicated to bicycles and maps indicating popular biking routes are distributed. This is really an easy city to see from the seat of a bike but you will need to get your United States passports online before you can travel to Spain.

Sandnes and Trondheim, two cities located in Norway, are extremely biker friendly. Norway is responsible for one of the most revolutionary bike-friendly inventions. They created a bike-lift, something that functions like a ski lift for skiers. Instead of having to pedal uphill in your business attire and risk getting sweaty and overheated, this lift pushes you uphill. Both cities are focusing on increasing bike traffic by means of increasing the safety, accessibility, and ease of use of bike lines. Both cities have a system where you can rent bikes, making traveling around the cities much easier.

When visiting the country of Denmark, be sure to visit Copenhagen if you are a cycling enthusiast. Almost one third of the locals use biking as their major form of transportation. This city also provides free loaner bikes to visitors and residents. All that is necessary is a deposit which is refunded to the rider when the bike is returned.

Amsterdam in the Netherlands is the hands-down best place to explore by bicycle. Almost 40% of all commutes are done by bicycle, and increased conveniences for cyclists are always being made. As the bike capital of the world, Amsterdam has a huge network of bike paths, all of which are very safe and quick. A huge, 10,000-spot bike garage is being built at the main Amsterdam train station, and with this improvement, more people than ever will be biking.

Exploration from the seat of a bicycle is an awesome way to really get in touch with the character and charm of a country, especially when the local governments have been so proactive in creating opportunity in a safe setting. Go to your computer and get your passports online quickly and easily by contacting uspassportnow.com or any other secure passport online agency. Whether you need a new one or simply need to add USA passport pages to your existing one, it is simply and easy and will open the world to bike-friendly cities to you and your family both here and around the world.

You can also find this article published on A Different Kind Of Vacation - See The World From The Top Of A Bike, and on the tag pages beaten tourist path, Bike, Form, renewing passports, station, united states passports.