Marseille is the second most populated city in France, right after the capital, Paris. Marseille is very different though, as there are so many different cultures and backgrounds that intermingle in the city. If you are thinking of traveling to Marseille, you will need to get a passport first. If you already have a passport and it's just expired, than getting a passport renewal is your next step.

Generally, the thought of having to get a new passport or renew a passport evokes groans, and for good reason. Not only is the entire process one big hassle, but it's also very time consuming. However, there is a new alternative that takes the aggravating old process and replaces it with something much easier and much quicker. Online passport services are the way to go if you need any sort of passport service completed. They handle everything from getting your first passport to an emergency passport renewal for kids.

As one of the oldest cities in Europe, Marseille has a long and interesting history that is still evident in the city today. Beginning with the Phoceans who inhabited this region in 600 BC, the area has grown and molded into the city we know now. This history can be seen not only in museums, but by simply walking through the streets. Many churches, monuments, and other significant places are there for you to see, including Notre Dame de la Garde. Notre Dame de la Garde stands as a very recognizable symbol of Marseille and a point of reverence for sailors. It stands at the top of a huge hill that overlooks the city, and it is said that this spot has always served as a lookout point, some say even in prehistoric times.

A great place to start your adventure in the city of Marseille is the Old Port, known as Vieux-Port in French. Much of Marseille's historical influences combine here at the city's main harbor. Not only can you stop for lunch in one of the many sea-side cafes, but you can also visit the two huge fortresses that stand on either side of the harbor: Fort St. Nicolas and Fort St. Jean. Definitely be sure to stop at Noailles. This area resembles an Arabic bazaar with plenty of Indo-Chinese shops to visit. La Plaine is a very trendy place to visit, as it has plenty of old book stores, cafes, old fountains, and plenty of places to stop and eat.

Marseille is also a very beautiful natural sort of place. The Calanques are a stunning natural formation of seaside fjords overlooking the ocean. They are white because of their limestone composition, and the scenery is absolutely stunning. Also be sure to take a boat ride or even a cruise on the Mediterranean Sea, as it is definitely beautiful.

Marseille is a great place to visit for your next vacation. Just don't forget to get your passport or passport renewal. Remember that you are able to do everything straight from your computer, including emergency kids passport renewal.
