US Passport Rush For Deadlines

Travel planning by its very definition can be stressful. There are so many things to do, especially when talking about international travel. The trip taker must pack for different climates, get plane tickets, their passport and many other things. Often times, people are prepared but for those who forget, there may be the need for a passport rush.

You Need A Passport

Because of changes to national security, getting a passport has grown increasingly more important for international travel. Historically, one could take a cruise or visit Mexico or Canada with merely a driver's license and birth certificate. That is no longer the case.

You Need An Itinerary

According to the US State Department, there are a number of items the traveler will need to begin the process. You will need the necessary forms from the federal government, proof of citizenship like a birth certificate, a valid photo ID, your social security card, the application fees and your expected date of travel.

You Need Help

While the US government is trying to change things to make it easier to obtain these in shorter amounts of time, it may still be much faster to get an outside agency to assist. The federal government suggests visiting a passport agency, mailing in your application to the U. S. Department of State, visiting a local post office or checking with your county clerk.

You Need Documents

The process for getting it varies slightly depending on the speed at which you need it. To begin, the traveler will need to gather the items mentioned above. You may then determine which application option you want to pursue.

You Must Pay The Fee

According to travel agents, the best course of action to get an expedited passport is to visit a regional office, which can be located by calling a specific number. In order to get assistance from a regional office, however, you must have a travel date within two weeks. When calling the regional office, the traveler will get an exact location of the local office and an appointment time will be given. The traveler will be required to be at the meeting. All documents and payment will be required at that time.

You Need A Speedy Delivery

If the traveler chooses to hire an outside agency, there may be even greater chance of getting the document faster. Some websites offer services ranging from the normal speed to 24 hours. The costs associated reflect the speed at which you would like the ID delivered.

You Can Track The Progress

A system is in place to track your passport's progress as well. You will need the number given to you by the federal government or local agency. Then again, it may just be easier to pay a little more and let a third-party handle the worrying for you.
