

Published based on USA Passport Form - Do Not Put Off Just Up Until The Last Minute

USA Passport Form - Do Not Put Off Just Up Until The Last Minute

The U.S. government relies on paperwork for everything they do and this is no different when it comes to getting a passport or maintaining one. The right United States passport form can help an individual get a new passport or renew an old one and selecting the correct one can mean the difference between a quick application and a drawn out one. There are two basic forms when it comes to getting a new passport and they are the DS-11 and DS-82.

Everyone has seen a passport at some point in their life, whether it was in real life or in a movie, with its blue cover and distinctive gold seal. The standard issue passport has a life of 10 years for adults and only five years for a minor child, 16 or under, before needing renewal. The age of the applicant plays a part in which forms will be necessary when filing an application for a brand new passport.

When applying for a new passport, the majority of applicants will need to appear in person at a Passport Acceptance facility. They will need to have the proper passport form filled out when they appear along with current identification documents proving their citizenship. The Post Office is one of the most widely used locations for applying for a passport.

In person appearances need to be made by any individual applying for a passport for the first time and any minors under the age of 16. The minors will also need to appear if they are renewing their passport until that are above the age of 16. There will be other forms of identification required and these should be on hand when making this trip.

There is also a separate form for replacing a lost or stolen passport and this may also be found online. This will need to be printed out and completed before arriving at the acceptance facility along with having photocopies or proper identification documents. This is yet another application process that must be completed in person.

As well as Form DS-11, there are some other documents that an individual needs to have with them when they appear at a designated government facility. For example, an individual will need to provide evidence of U.S. citizenship. A document that would fulfill this need is a birth certificate. Individuals who need to attain a copy of their birth certificate should contact the Vital Statistics office where they were born.

Individuals that need to appear in person should gather all their documentation together and even designate a folder to put all the information in so that it will be organized and difficult to lose. Another piece of documentation that an individual needs is form of valid identification. This can be either an old passport, as long it is not damaged, or a valid driver's license. There are other documents accepted too, for those who do not have either of these.

A U S passport is something that is better to have and not need, than need and not have. The right American passport form can help in the application process moving along quite smoothly. One thing to keep in mind is to not sign the completed application until in the presence of an agent at the facility, otherwise it will be need to be redone completely.

You can also find this article published on USA Passport Form - Do Not Put Off Just Up Until The Last Minute , and on the tag pages application, getting a new passport, getting a passport, passport, passport acceptance facility, person.